To Whom It May Concern,

I am writing in reference to Bulathsinhalage Sankha Cooray and his job application. I have known Sankha for 3 years as his colleague and friend. Sanka is a self-motivated individual and he is really passionate about what he does. He likes to innovate and improve what he does continuously through critical and design thinking. In terms of his skills mobile application development with AR and VR functionalities using various and modern platforms emerges to the top. In parallel, he develops software with many languages such as Java, C#, Angular and Node JS. He also has a lot of experience in working with databases needed for the systems he builds. He usually does everything he needs to do himself and therefore carries the experience with many tools and technologies. Apart from these, he has also worked with Arduino, Web Serial API and cloud technologies such as Firebase and AWS.

Apart from all these Sankha is a hard worker and gives his full attention to finishing the task at hand and he always adds something new to the system to further improve it. I would strongly recommend Sankha for the Research Engineer position because I think that his skill set and passion matches the position perfectly. With the resources and culture in the university environment, he will do great innovations and bring visibility to the team and the university.
